Volunteer position

D.R. Congo team, Global Witness

1-2 days per week for 3-6 months

Global Witness' team working on the Democratic Republic of Congo, based in London, is seeking a part-time volunteer to start 1st September, for a 3-6 month period, working 1-2 days per week.

The volunteer will assist in monitoring international press on the DR Congo and the natural resource sector, translating French documents, conducting desk-based research on related topics and carrying out a number of administrative tasks including updating contact details, filing and mailings.

The position would be most suitable for recent university graduates and post-graduate students with a background in international relations, human rights, environmental science or international development. Applicants should be reliable and well-organised with good computer and communication skills. Proficiency in written and spoken French and English is necessary.

Global Witness provides a daily transport and food allowance.

To apply, send a letter of interest (including dates of availability), CV and names or letters of reference to Lizzie Parsons, Campaigner, at lparsons@globalwitness.org.

Please put "Volunteer Application" as the subject of the email.

The deadline for applications is 15th August.
