

Glencore response to Global Witness

“Glencore thanks Global Witness for the opportunity to respond to allegations that will be raised regarding Cerrejon at a panel: Holding Companies to Account - How new EU laws can help protect people and the planet against corporate abuse.”

“We recognise that we have the potential to impact on human rights directly through our operations, or through our relationships with joint ventures, contractors and suppliers. We are committed to respecting human rights and actively support our employees, business partners and others to understand and meet this commitment.

“Cerrejon is an independently managed joint venture, owned by Anglo American, BHP and Glencore. As an independently-managed joint venture, Cerrejon will provide a detailed response to the allegations raised by Global Witness.”
